A New Book
By
Dr. A. H. R. Fairchild
"The Making of Poetry"

Orders for this new book are being received at the Missouri Store now. It will be out the first week in May. The price will be about $1.50.

In the advance announcement of the publishers, a capable critic says this:

"'The Making of Poetry' should really be called a new view of poetry because it approaches poetry from an entirely novel standpoint. It gives the reader an unsuspected insight into the nature of poetry. In addition to making clear the reason why poetry is appreciated, it points out the practical value of poetry. It will help the reader to unify his ideas and conceptions about English literature both in poetry and prose, and will give him a new sense of power and confidence in literary judgments. 'Whether the reader's interests are professional or non-professional, it is a book that will deepen his insight, sharpen his judgement, reveal how and why poetry is made, and unfold the secret of its delight.'"

Order your copy at once and be sure to receive it promptly. A telephone call or letter will do.
